

Angello, 5, Honduras

Angello

Angello's mother, Marta, works as hard as she can, doing laundry and cooking for others. It's a meager living, but since the pandemic began, work has become scarce. Marta has difficulty finding a way to put food on the table. Angello and his siblings used to rely on school meals, but schools closed due to the pandemic, meaning this little boy in Honduras goes hungry.

Food and proper nutrition are important for growing children. Angello seldom receives enough food to keep his young body healthy and thriving. Without enough nutrition, his body can't fight off the kind of infections and diseases that well-fed children can overcome.

Your loving gift to Food For The Poor provides Angello, and children like him, with food and lifesaving medicine.

Learn more about our lifesaving ministry at www.FoodForThePoor.org