

Gail Hamaty-Bird

Executive Vice President and General Counsel

Gail Hamaty-Bird, Executive Vice President and General Counsel, is responsible for Food For The Poor's (FFTP) legal matters. Gail joined FFTP in 2018. She previously served as an associate at Minerley Fein P.A., in Boca Raton Fla., where she practiced estate planning, probate and probate litigation, trust administration, guardianships, real estate transactions and title insurance, corporate, immigration, and family law.

Gail began her career as a prosecutor in Jamaica before going on to practice in multiple areas of specialization. Born in Mandeville, Jamaica, Gail is a graduate of the University of Liverpool, Cayman Islands, and the Norman Manley School of Law in Kingston, Jamaica. She holds a Master of Laws in Intercultural Human Rights and a Juris Doctor degree from the St. Thomas University School of Law.

She is a member in good standing of the Florida Bar Association and the Jamaican Bar.

Gail lives in South Florida with her husband, Damian, and they have two children.

"My commitment to myself is that I leave this world having made it a little better than I found it. Serving at Food For The Poor gives me the opportunity to do just that."

— Gail Hamaty – Bird